THE PIGEON POSTS OF GREAT BARRIER ISLAND

July 1899

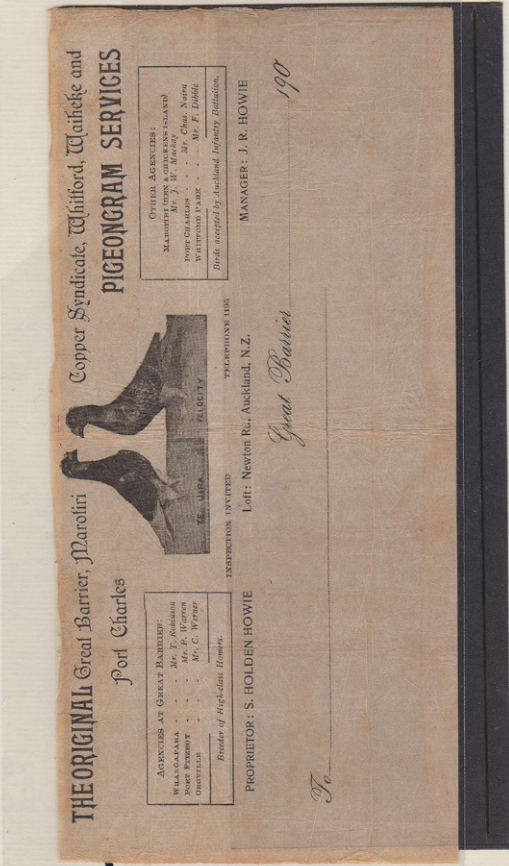

What of Mr Fricker of the Agency? The issuing of stamps by his competitors intensified their bitter rivalry. He commissioned a noted local artist, Mr Harry Wrigg, to design a stamp for his Agency, with the instruction to base his design on the centrepiece of the Auckland Flying Clubs pigeon racing certificate.

Mr. H. Wrigg. (New Zealand Cross) was born at Casuar House, near Wexford, Ireland, and at an early age served in H.M. Dragoon Guards. While yet young he was attached to a leading civil engineer in the north of England, under whom he was engaged upon railways and waterworks. On his arrival in this colony he saw service in the war of 1883, for which he was awarded the war medal and clasp; he was also decorated with the "cross" for valor, for voluntarily carrying despatches along with the enemy's country. Mr. Wrigg was draughtsman by special appointment to H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, and was chief draughtsman in the engineer-in-chief's department, Thames Goldfields, and in the New Zealand Public Works Department, from 1888 to 1888; for part of the period he had charge of the photo-lithographic and lithographic branches, as well as the drafting for the Marine and Railways Departments. He holds first awards for drawings with silver medals, at the Sydney Exhibition (1879), Melbourne (1880), and Centennial Exhibition (1887). Mr. Wrigg retired on a pension through ill-health in 1887.

THE STORY OF THE NEW ZEALAND PIGEON POST STAMPS

What of Mr Fricker of the Agency? The issuing of stamps by his competitors, and the ensuing world-wide interest, intensified their bitter rivalry. He commissioned a noted local artist, Mr Harry Wrigg, to design a stamp for his Agency, with the instruction to base his design on the centrepiece of the Auckland Flying Clubs pigeon racing certificate.

Mr Fricker's Agency triangular stamps. The used stamps each have the distinctive boxed G.B.P.A. cancellation and date.

These are widely regarded as the world's first "Airmail" stamps. The design is certainly remarkable for its time. The values were 6d and 1/- . The cheaper stamp is for the journey from Great Barrier Island to Auckland, and the 1/- for the more difficult return journey, a pigeon breeding base having been established by Mr McMillan.

They went on sale on 11 July, 1899.

THE STORY OF THE NEW ZEALAND PIGEON POST STAMPS

October 1898

Another new name appears: Mr Henry Bolitho. He had no interest in pigeons but was a keen stamp collector, and he approached Mr Howie with a proposal to affix a stamp, supplied by himself, to each flimsy. The value of the stamp was to be 1/-, but Mr Bolitho, seeing the opportunity for profit, offered to purchase each used stamp at 3d each.

1st ISSUE

FORGERIES

Due to enormous international interest in the philatelic press, forgeries, printed in the US, appeared shortly afterward. There are several clear differences to the genuine stamp, including the perforation. In addition the forged cancel states APR 8 99 whilst the genuine postmark states just "1898".

2nd ISSUE

3rd & 4th ISSUES

When new stamps were required, they looked quite different, having a different engraver and printer. The first stamp says "Special Post": they were only used for a few months, until brought to the attention of the NZ Post Office, who threatened a law suit for loss of revenue. Eventually the PO agreed that the Service could continue using stamps on the pigeon mail provided that the offending words "Special Post" were obliterated. Thus the remaining stamps of this issue were overprinted with the word "Pigeongram", until another printing was made, using "Pigeon Gram" (2 words) in place of Special Post.

The Pigeongram overprinted stamps are now the rarest and most expensive of the pigeon post stamps, the current retail price in New Zealand of a fine used copy being NZ$10,000.
